AIMS

At Moorland School we believe in looking for and reinforcing the positive. It is the policy of the school therefore to accept children at the point at which they come to school, to expect the best from them and involve them in any process which is designed to modify and improve their behaviour.

We believe in having high expectations of children and in applauding each small step taken by any child toward better behaviour.

In school children are always to be left with a sense that they can and will do better in the future and that their teachers believe in them and are counting on them.

Many children come to school, behaving well and able to conform to the expectations which underpin the successful running of the school day. It is important that these children are not overlooked but are encouraged and have their good behaviour celebrated and affirmed. It is inevitable that some children will be unable to cope with the social demands made on them by school and such children need careful, consistent handling.

The aim of this policy is to determine the boundaries of acceptable and unacceptable behaviour. Remember that Moorland School is very selective on behaviour.

Overall, the purpose of this policy is to ensure that all members of staff: -

- Promote self-discipline and proper regard for authority among pupils,
- Identify and promote the underpinning values that we hold dear,
- Encourage good behaviour & respect for others and to prevent all forms of bullying among pupils,
- Ensure pupils' standard of behaviour is acceptable,
- Regulate pupils' conduct.

Discipline is a straightforward exercise when there is a tripartite relationship between: -

Pupils

Involving pupils can help reinforce school behaviour policies by active involvement in anti-bullying and harassment policies, and contributing ideas through school council and in class discussions.

Parents

The school encourages parents to support good attendance and behaviour through regular contact with parents via parents' meetings and other means of contact (email, telephone etc.). Parents and pupils will be aware that the school has a clear duty of care for all pupils who attend.

Staff

It is important that the same high standards of discipline are maintained by all for a consistent approach. It is not helpful if one member of staff allows pupils do one thing when another reprimands for it. However, an empathetic approach must be followed for different situations regarding pupils. Just like the school complaints procedure, informal resolution is nearly always the first the way to deal with any problem relating to discipline. Most disciplinary problems can be resolved quickly and informally. Children are children; if mistakes are made then it is important for lessons to be learned and for the children to be allowed to move on. It is also most important to seize every opportunity to praise and encourage your pupils.

SCHOOL RULES

All rules need to be discussed constantly and revisited by the class teacher many times; especially as new children begin school. Older children will often become good role models for the younger children and are expected to pass on good habits and help their younger counterparts.

Class Rules

Senior classes should operate an age-related set of class rules, as established by each teacher in their own teaching space. Class rules must relate to: -

- * A positive work ethic
- * Caring for each other
- * Appropriate conduct during lessons
- * Behaviour around the classroom (particularly regarding safety) and
- * Care of equipment

Everyday equipment must be checked and put away with care, as we believe that children who do not learn to respect and care for things in school will not be able to extend respect and care to others or to themselves.

General Comments on Discipline

Minor breaches of discipline should be dealt with by the member of staff. It should be recognised that the ideal is to keep punishment to a minimum, consistent with good order and satisfactory work. Where punishment is necessary it is important to follow up and make sure the punishments are carried out, do not assume that they will be.

Staff should correct bad manners at the dining table, in the classroom and outside. Pupils should say good morning, stand aside at doorway entrances and stairways, stand up to greet adults entering a classroom and be generally polite at all times. Slovenly dress, poor speech, etc. should be corrected.

SENIOR SCHOOL ASSERTIVE DISCIPLINE SYSTEM

The School uses iSAMS, which allows all staff to record Rewards and Sanctions for all staff to see. It is important that staff record positive as well as negative behaviour, and are consistent in their use of the system.

There are many other possible rewards, including:

- Verbal praise – always the easiest to deliver and very effective...
- CONTACT PARENTS AND SAY WELL DONE !!!!!
- Achievement Award (termly)
- Student of the Term
- Student of the Year
- Trophies
- Prefect roles

Possible Sanctions

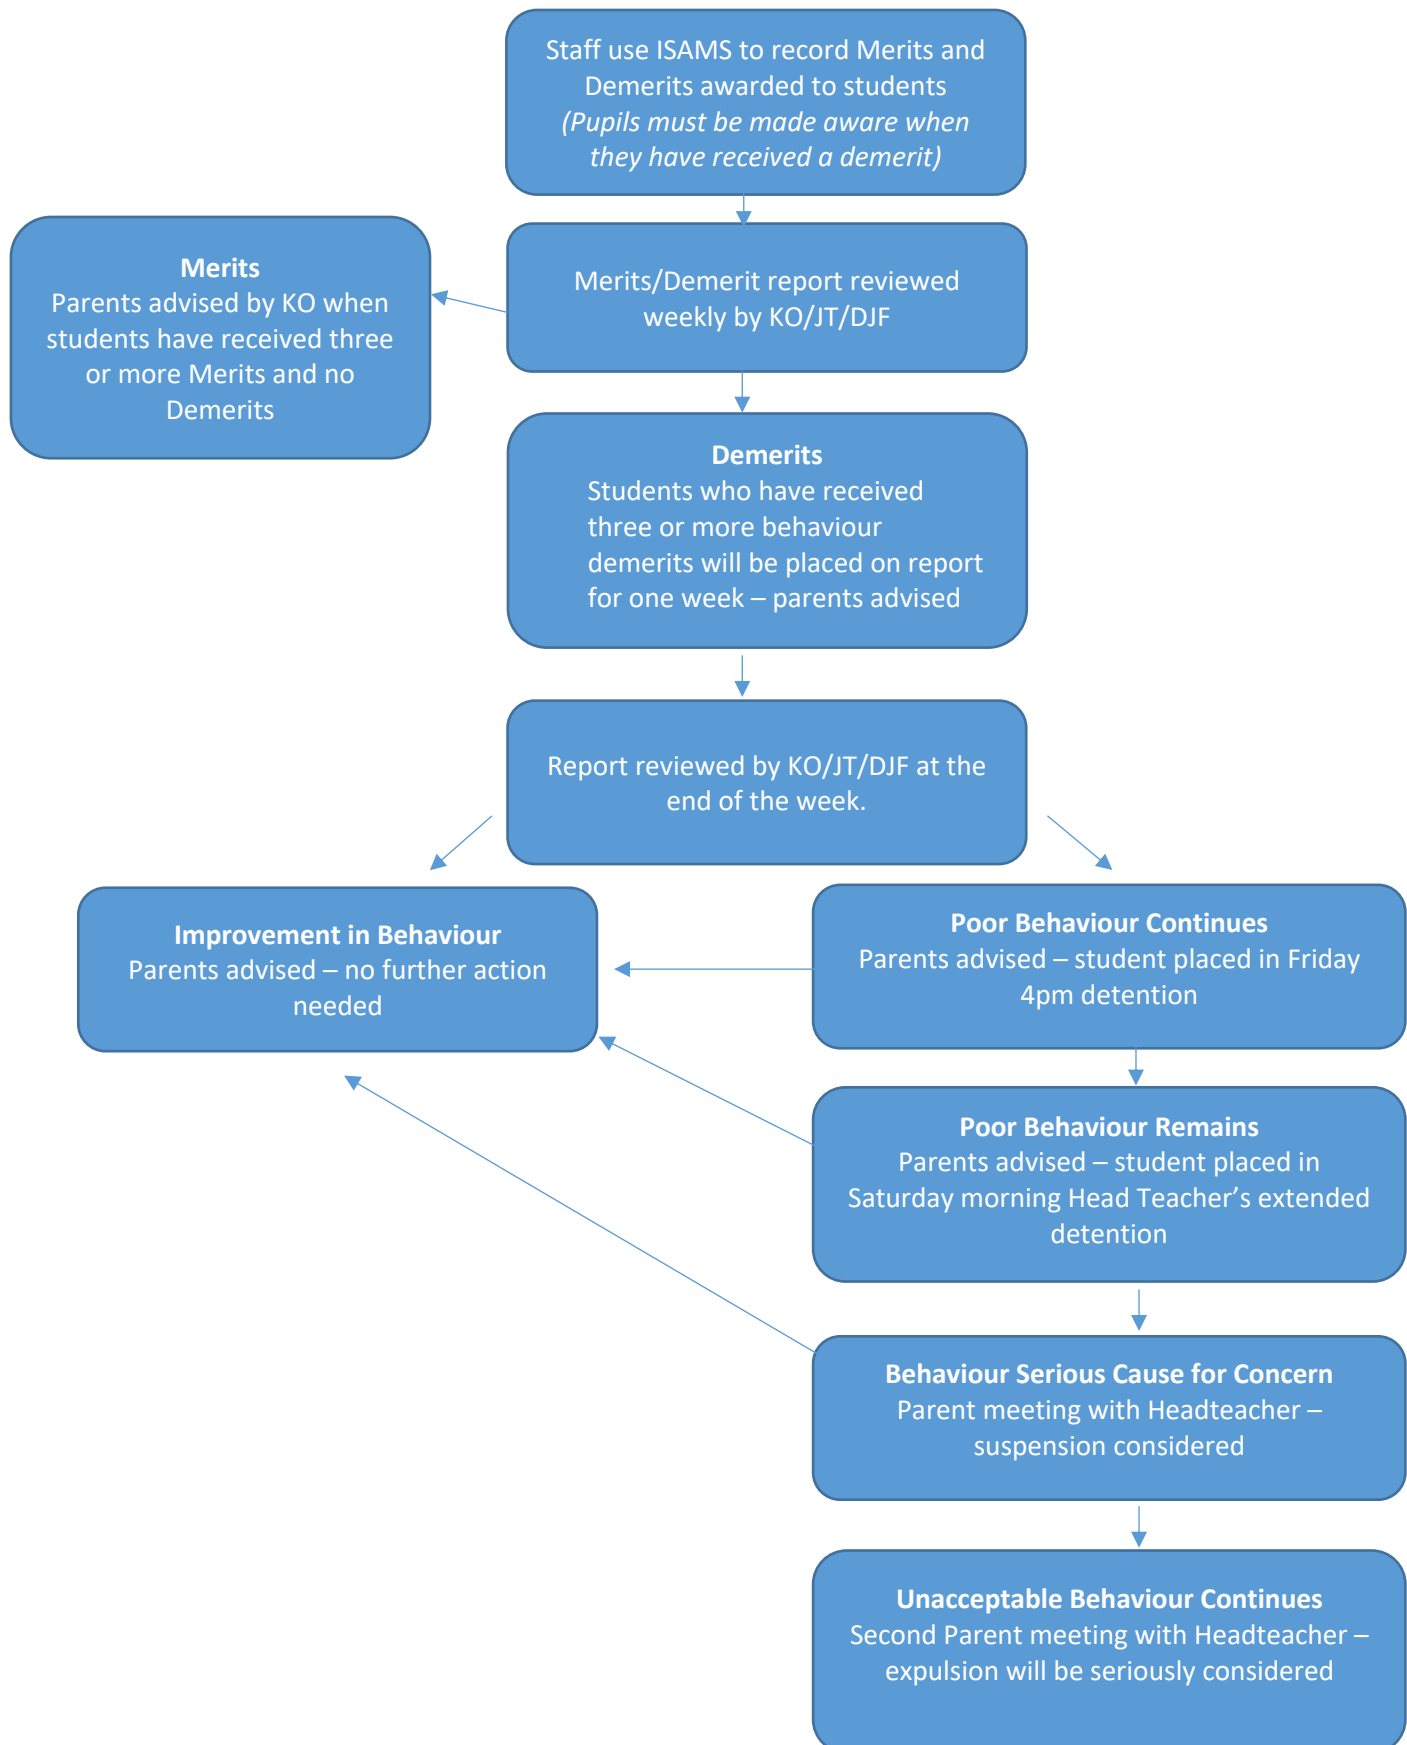

There are many possible sanctions, including all of the following:

- Warnings
- Moving to another seat
- Redoing work
- Working in isolation (under supervision)
- Recreational isolation
- Litter picking
- Detention (lunchtime, after school, or Saturday/Sunday – see notes below)
- Weekly report
- Referral to the Headteacher
- Internal exclusion (for boarders) **
- Fixed term exclusion (suspension) **
- Permanent exclusion (expulsion) **

 The conditions for exclusion (suspension and expulsion) are set out in the School Rules. Moorland School makes it very clear to pupils and parents that certain types of behaviour will have serious consequences.

This policy outlines explains the processes in place for managing pupil behaviour.

SENIOR SCHOOL BEHAVIOUR MANAGEMENT FLOW CHART

SENIOR SCHOOL CLASSROOM BEHAVIOUR MANAGEMENT

Low Level Disruption & Defiance – the Behaviour Management Flow Chart will be followed. Two warnings will be given before the issue of a Demerit, giving students the chance to correct their behaviour. If poor behaviour continues after the demerit is awarded, teachers may request that the student is temporarily removed from the lesson.

High Level Disruption – i.e. swearing, vandalism, aggressive behaviour – will result in immediate demerit and removal from classroom.

Removal from classroom - student asked to stand quietly in the corridor; teaching staff will immediately alert SLT, stating "URGENT REMOVAL" in the email subject line, along with the reason for the removal. Miss Thornton, Mr Stephenson or Mrs Frost will attend straight away to deal with the incident. Parents will be contacted and an appropriate action agreed, Students will then be returned to their class where appropriate.

Strikes – a ‘strike’ system is in place and can be implemented by the SLT if deemed necessary for High Level Disruption/Behaviour concerns. Strikes can only be given by Miss Thornton, Mr Stephenson or Mrs Frost. The issue of a ‘strike’, and its consequences, will be discussed with student & parents:

Strike 1 : 1-day internal suspension

Strike 2 : 1 day external suspension

Strike 3 : 3-day external suspension

Strike 4 : 1-week external suspension

Strike 5 : Expulsion

A student who receives multiple Amber Warnings will be asked to see the Head teacher, who will discuss the reasons behind the warnings with the student. Further help to improve behaviour might involve a programme of behaviour management, or further sanctions.

The whole purpose of Amber or Red Sanctions or demerits is to ultimately help the pupil by identifying trends in behaviour and giving support where needed.

Teacher Detentions will take place at lunchtime. Detentions given should be recorded on iSAMS.

After-school and weekend detentions will be issued only after consultation with the Headteacher and parents.

POSITIVE BEHAVIOUR STRATEGIES

- All staff, when considering behaviour strategies, must ensure that the individual and circumstances of the pupil are taken into account. Where appropriate class teachers should be consulted before a particular strategy is decided upon. Relevant background information should be recorded in the child's individual pupil profile and passed on to staff as appropriate.
- Good work or behaviour is recognised through iSAMS.
- Appropriate behaviour may also be rewarded with praise, positive parent contact or class rewards e.g. in the Junior School, choosing time.
- Adults will always outline their expectations of behaviour i.e. what the child is expected to do and explain why their current behaviour is unacceptable.
- Adults will ensure that children fully understand the consequences of their present course of action and choosing inappropriate behaviour.
- Inappropriate behaviour will be dealt with as children will always be given the choice of how they wish to behave.
- After a certain period of time the child will be given the choice to behave appropriately and re-join the group or to remain separate.
- Class teachers will be informed of any inappropriate behaviour.
- Any continuing behavioural problems will be referred to the Headteacher, and parents informed and invited to meet and talk with the relevant staff.

DEALING WITH DIFFICULT BEHAVIOUR

Inevitably there will be some children, who because of difficulties they have faced prior to school admission, will need particular help and especially careful handling. Teachers must enlist support from at least one other colleague if a child is proving particularly difficult to handle. The Headteacher is always available to support teachers when existing systems do not bring enough progress and improvement.

Attempts should be made to clearly acknowledge the level at which the child is operating and adjust expectations and activities commensurately. The SENDCO teacher is always willing to support special programmes of work.

Teachers must undertake to make brief dated notes on iSAMS regarding any behaviour which is giving concern in the classroom. Often a pattern will emerge or a series of relatively minor incidents combine to give major concern. In such circumstances it is essential to have written notes as it is impossible to remember things accurately after the event.

In the final analysis a referral to the Headteacher will usually result in a dialogue with parents. Subsequent self-referral to Child and Family Therapy is possible. Often behaviour which is contained within school is symptomatic of serious behavioural difficulties in the home.

The school does not use corporal punishment.

ROLE OF THE HEADTEACHER

The Headteacher is always on hand to offer support and advice to teachers and support or ancillary staff alike.

Being the ultimate authority in school it is unavoidable that there is very occasionally a confrontation with a child. A staff member will always stay with a child in a crisis situation and will only return the child to the class when this has been resolved somehow, and when the child can see a way forward.

The Headteacher aims to build secure and strong relationships with children whose behaviour is proving a problem to themselves and others. They will specifically try to befriend such children and help them in their efforts to improve their behaviour.

In addition, they will work closely with any parents requesting support with a particular problem.

The Headteacher is responsible for sanctioning any home visits made and will receive a written report for each one. They will ask for the standard written notes made on any child with behavioural difficulties which need their personal intervention, and will then undertake to give the teacher, the child and the family every possible support.

BULLYING

- The school is absolutely committed to treating every incidence of bullying and racist name calling with great seriousness. Both things frequently manifest as part of a total picture of problem behaviour.
- In the case of bullying, the child who is bullying undoubtedly needs help, support and counselling, however first the bullying must be stopped in the interests of the other child or children. Both children are then carefully counselled, reassured and encouraged.
- Children are encouraged to write to their teacher or another member of staff if they find it difficult to talk to anyone. Any requests from a parent to investigate bullying are treated very seriously and acted upon immediately.
- Further information on how Moorland School deals with bullying is covered in detail in the Anti-Bullying Policy.

Policy Review

This policy will be reviewed as changes occur in school and behaviour management will need regular adjustment and constant re-evaluation. However, these are adjusted, the basic principles will remain the same.

Children have a right to know where the boundaries lie in terms of acceptable behaviour and have a right to teachers who care for them enough to take a stand.
